Ellenville's Jail Is Most Unsatisfactory, State Says

Correction Commission Hands Down Report Today and Makes Recommendations for Improved Conditions

Cites Fire Hazard

Among Unsatisfactory Points Is Named Danger to Prisoners in Event of Fire

With a charge that the Ellenville lockup, Ulster county, is one of the most unsatisfactory lockups in the state, the correction commission today approved the following report of inspection of the jail, which inspection was completed November 21, 1938, according to a special dispatch to The Freeman:

The lockup is located to the rear of the first floor of the village building, a small two-story structure with wooden interior. There is a cell room for men and a detention room for women. The cell room contains three brick cells with doors of flat bars and wooden ceilings. Each cell has a toilet—an ordinary low-down tank household fixture with the seat removed—an enameled floor, a lavatory, and a cot without mattress. There is an electric light on the ceiling of each cell, and in front of the cells is the heating plant for the building. The cells face a blank wall but there are windows in the end wall, only one of which really gives any light to the corridor. The detention room is an outside room with one window. It has toilet and lavatory and cot similar to the equipment in the cells for men and in addition, a mattress with waterproof case.

Entrance is through the fire apparatus room and to get to the detention room it is necessary to crouch down to pass under the ladders which extend from the back of the fire truck.

The place was not clean. The toilet bowls were very dirty, the lavatory was badly stained and was not stopped up and full of water which was foul smelling in the extreme, and the floors were unwept.

Since the last inspection the small space at the end of the cells—between the windows and the back—has been fitted up as lodgers' quarters. A three-decker wooden bunk was installed and flat bars were erected to form a shut-off from the cell room. However, there being no toilet facilities in this section, the door is not locked and the lodgers have the run of the place whether or not prisoners are detained. Permission to install this lodgers' section was not requested of the state commission of correction.

This is one of the most unsatisfactory lockups in the state, and it does not conform to the standards established by the state commission of correction. The village authorities should give serious consideration to replacing it with one that is modern in design, of fire resistant construction, and with separate quarters for male and female prisoners and lodgers.

The chief of police stated that detentions of males average two to three a week, with about that same number of lodgers each night. The officer on patrol visits the lockup at least hourly during the night when a prisoner is detained, according to the chief. Because of the fire hazard existing, constant and competent supervision should be provided whenever a prisoner is locked up.

The chief of police said that prisoners held at meal time are furnished with food from a restaurant; that the village clerk acts as matron on the very rare occasions when it is necessary to detain a woman, but she does not remain at the lockup—coming only at the time of arrest and occasionally during the night. Under no circumstances should a woman be detained unless under the constant supervision of a matron.

Cash Won't Do It

About 60 'Debs' Learn They Can't Buy Their Way Into Court at Presentation

London, Dec. 29 (AP)—The dreams of nearly three score debtors of being presented at court in 1939 were reported dashed today—because they, in effect, tried to "buy their way in."

The Lord Chamberlain, the Daily Mail said, has decided to reject applications for presentation made on behalf of 58 girls and women.

He was said to be acting on the grounds that they paid cash to hard-pressed pesterers to sponsor their applications.

Relief Problem Flares Anew

Resentment of Municipalities Toward Unemployment Burdens Develops Into Demand That State Shoulder Greater Portion of Home Relief

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—The long-smoldering resentment of municipalities toward their unemployment relief burdens flared today into demands that the state shoulder a greater portion of home relief expense and in local costs of work projects.

Expected to provoke a bitter battle in the 1939, Republican-controlled legislature, the whole relief-financing problem cropped up in a legislative program recommended to Democratic Governor Lehman and the law-makers by the State Conference of Mayors.

The program also urged a joint study by the state and localities of means for paring home relief and public employment rolls of employables "who are unwilling to change their status" and forcing them to accept private jobs when available.

Its formulation was one of several developments spotlighting the opening of the legislature next Wednesday and included:

Announcement by Democratic Senator-Elect Phelps, New York city, that he would revive in the legislature efforts to have the constitutional ban on gambling lifted.

State Agriculture Commissioner Holton V. Noyes summoned 30 representatives of farm organizations and milk companies to a meeting here today to discuss a "unified" legislative program affecting agriculture.

The prediction of Republican Senator Perley A. Pitcher that relief financing, low-cost housing legislation and proposed creation of a state health insurance system would give the 1939 session its "major problems." Pitcher is slated for the majority leadership of the senate.

'No Party'

That's what pretty Miss Noel Carter (above), red-haired dancer and entertainer, told reporters as she arrived at a federal grand jury inquiry in New York city, which is investigating activities of William P. Buckner. Buckner is charged with mail fraud in connection with a Philippine railway bond deal. Jurors heard testimony about a $5,000 party Assistant U. S. Attorney W. P. Malone says Buckner gave for congressmen.

Barbara's Husband 'Is Anything But' Her Ex-Chauffeur

Copper Heiress Guggenheim's Third Husband Is Business Man, Quick on Trigger and No 'Cinderella'

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Copper heiress Barbara Guggenheim was honeymooning 'way out west today with a third husband who, far from being her ex-chauffeur, is anything but.

Indeed, his employer said, Henry Obre is a $5,000-a-year man, vice president and salesman of a grinding wheel company on lower Broadway, a crack boatman and—of possible interest to those who dubbed him a Cinderella man—a dead shot with a gun.

Besides, added Edwin L. Best, president of the grinding wheel firm, Obre's brother is not a butcher, but a food store owner and president of the board of trade in Shrewsbury, N. J., where their mother, Mrs. Mathilde Obre, owns considerable property.

Moreover, said J. Arthur Leve, attorney for the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Guggenheim, "he is descended from a Huguenot family who have been in the United States since the early 1600's."

This torrent of information followed a 24-hour silence that left uncontradicted several reports on the identity of the bridegroom.

No one talked except Mrs. Obre's second husband, Fred West, New Jersey sportsman, and he said his former wife could not be remarried because her Miami divorce from him was still in effect, though court records showed it to have been effective October 24.

The bride's family was "not in" to callers at the hotel apartment where Guggenheim's notable collection of modern art is hung, and yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Guggenheim.

Grover S. Hoffay of 87 Cedar street, George J. Griffen of 48 Hunter street, and Frank E. Sammons of 34 Smith avenue, head the eligible list for policeman in the Kingston police department as a result of the recent civil service examination held at Kingston High School.

These three names will be submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners and one of them will undoubtedly be selected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Officer Ray Sachloff, who retires from active service the first of the year.

Twenty-five men were successful in passing the physical and mental tests, and the eligible list which will stand for two years as announced by the Municipal Civil Service Commission contains the following names in the order of their standing on the list:

Florence Lawrence Kills Self

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—Florence Lawrence, 52, the original "Biograph Girl" of the early day screen, was listed a suicide in police records today. Unable to regain her health, she said in a farewell note, she swallowed poison yesterday at her Westbourne drive home. She died a short time later.

$10,000,000 'Take' to Mark New Year's Eve Revelry in New York; 'Hot Spots' Swamped

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Manhattan Merry-Go-Round whirled faster today toward its annual madcap climax on New Year's Eve, with advance reservations heralding a $10,000,000 duck-to-duck celebration as '38 clicks over into '39.

The larger hotels were swamped. Night club proprietors in the "fabulous fifties" mournfully turned away late-comers eager to plunk down anywhere from $15 to $30 a couple.

Prices were about the same as last year, with a noticeable restriction of the give-away gadgets such as noise-makers, favors and free bottles of champagne to lure patronage—indicating dollars are easier, both come and go.

Broadway theatres shared heavily in the seasonal prosperity. Yesterday was the biggest matinee day in the Times Square belt

WPA Must Go, Say Congressmen; PWA Is Favored Instead

Senators Expect Little Opposition to Carrying WPA Until July 1, but Believe Next Congress Must Decide

'Starvation Wages'

McCarron Says WPA Pays Starvation Wage and Kills Initiative

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—A congressional demand for gradual abandonment of the WPA was forecast today by some legislators in discussing a proposal to make the Public Works Administration a semi-permanent agency.

Although they expected little opposition to an emergency appropriation to carry WPA until July 1, several senators said they believed the next congress must decide whether there is to be long-time planning for relief needs.

In this connection, there have been proposals that congress draft a PWA construction program at least a year in advance, tentatively set aside the money to carry it out, and permit the PWA to take applications for projects.

Then, whenever private industry slackened, the President could get the PWA machinery into action immediately. Sponsors of the plan argued that it would supplant some emergency WPA work and that eventually WPA might be abandoned.

Asserting that he favored a permanent PWA to take up the slack of unemployment, Senator Hayden (D., Ariz.) predicted congress would be asked to act on this suggestion after the emergency appropriation for the WPA is voted. That appropriation probably will be $550,000,000 to $750,000,000.

Hayden, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he thought congress should "control the purse strings" on future relief funds.

Wage scales generally are higher on PWA projects than for the lighter work attempted under the WPA program. Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) said he believed this was a point which congress should consider.

"Not only for the good of the country, but for the good of the relief workers themselves, WPA must come to an end," McCarran declared.

"In the first place, WPA workers are paid starvation wages. In the second place, they are afraid to leave their WPA jobs to take private employment that may not be permanent."

Senator Schwartz (D., Wyo.) agreed that this was one of the chief objections to the present setup.

Party leaders, meanwhile, were beginning to set up the machinery under which the 1939 congress will operate. Senate Democrats will meet Saturday to elect Senator Barkley of Kentucky as their floor leader, and to fill vacancies on their steering committee.

In the House, however, Democratic chiefs have decided to delay until late next week selection of committee members, apparently to try to place administration stalwarts in key spots.

House Republicans will meet Monday night to choose a floor leader—probably Rep. Martin of Massachusetts. Since they nearly doubled their House strength, they will get a larger representation on most committees.

If administration leaders follow their present plans, however, the rules committee, which decides whether major bills get the right-of-way, will retain its set-up of 10 Democrats and four Republicans.

WPA Rolls Decrease

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Works Progress Administration announced today that its rolls decreased 55,996 during the week ended December 17. This brought the total work relief enrollment to 3,982,243 compared with 3,139,245 on December 10.

Stock Exchange Expels J. A. Sisto for Conduct

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange today expelled from membership J. A. Sisto, general partner in J. A. Sisto & Co., for improper conduct.

Sisto in 1937 was prominent business conduct. Involved by Samuel Seabury in the removal of charges against former Mayor James J. Walker in connection with an alleged gift to Walker by Sisto of bonds worth more than $26,000.

Today's expulsion was the first since that of Richard Whitney, former president of the Exchange, now serving a sentence in Sing Sing prison.

Immediately following the expulsion today, State Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., ordered an investigation "to protect the public interest."

City Tax to Be $38.96 If Budget Is Adopted

Increase Would Be Four Cents Per Thousand Valuation, if Common Council Passes Present Budget—Public Hearing Will Be Held at City Hall Friday Evening

If the tentative tax budget drafted by Mayor C. J. Heislman to be submitted at the public hearing at the city hall on Friday evening is adopted by the common council at its first regular meeting in January, the city's tax rate for 1939 will be $38.96, or four cents per thousand valuation more than it was this year when the rate was $38.92.

The mayor stated today that he has spent the last 10 days in studying and paring in an attempt to get the rate as safely possible near the present tax rate and that the budget showing "the rate of $38.96 is as good as can be done." He said that it was a sound budget and the various departments would be expected to live within the appropriations made.

The mayor pointed out that five years ago, when he assumed office, the rate was $41.23. It since has been as low as $35.43. During the past five critical years, the city has expanded and improved municipal services, purchased and paid for much modern equipment, made improvements to city property, have had as much as 20% of our population receiving some form of relief, and at the same time reduced the cost of government. This has been done, the mayor stated, by eliminating waste and extravagance, by purchasing materials and supplies from the lowest bidder, and by the application of sound business principles to government.

During the administration assessed valuations have decreased $769,886.00. If the assessments were as high now as they were before the present administration assumed office, the tax rate for 1939 would be $37.70, or $1.26 lower.

The tentative budget shows a reduction of $33,405.79 in appropriation accounts and a decrease of $41,273.41 in estimated revenues, a net increase in the budget of $7,867.62.

The amount which must be included in the budget for the city's share of the county tax is about $206,000.00, or approximately $25,000.00 less than it was in 1938. This saving, however, is wiped out by a net increase of $25,000.00 in the amount of relief bonds which must be paid off in 1939. The total maturing bonds and interest which must be paid off in 1939 is $178,443.21.

In 1937 the city finished the year with a $24,000.00 surplus, which increased the estimated revenues in the 1938 budget and decreased the 1938 rate by $1.00. In 1938 there was no surplus, so the estimated revenues for 1939 show a decrease compared with the previous year. The 1938 deficit is $6,400.00. This was caused by the cost of the hurricane, which amounted to $7,785.77. So it may be said that if there had been no hurricane, there would have been no deficit but that the city would have again finished the year with a surplus.

The tax rate would have been 30 cents less if there had been no hurricane and hence no deficit. The mayor stated that the total debt of the city at the close of 1938 will be $2,408,629.91. It was $2,446,059.83 at the beginning of 1938. Therefore, the total city debt decreased $37,429.92 during the year.

The mayor has invited the

Bartender Will Be Given a Hearing January 5; Is Held on Charge of Manslaughter First Degree

'Badly Battered'

Autopsy Shows Death Due to Brain Hemorrhage; Police Say Dead Man Battered

Charles W. Amato, 43, of 52 East Strand, was held under $10,000 bail this morning to await a hearing before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court on Thursday, January 5, on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree.

Amato is under arrest as the outcome of a brawl in the tavern at 52 East Strand, conducted by Harry Weisman, where he is employed as a bartender, in which Charles Rehnstrom, aged about 34, of 1 North street, met his death about 8:45 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Attorney Bernhard S. Kramer of the district attorney's office, said that he had received a verbal report from Dr. Taylor and Dr. Van Gaasbeek, who performed an autopsy on the dead man, to the effect that there was no skull fracture found but death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain, apparently caused by a blow.

Police Version

From the story as gathered by the police last night Rehnstrom was in the tavern with several others, drinking. He was better known as "Bo." During the evening an argument developed and it is claimed that Rehnstrom called Amato several vile names.

Amato, it is alleged, then stepped from behind the bar and struck Rehnstrom with his fists several times, knocking Rehnstrom to the floor.

Dominick Caputo of 217 East Union street, who was one of the several men in the barroom at the time, assisted Amato in picking Rehnstrom up from the floor and sitting him in a chair. They believed he had been knocked unconscious and efforts to revive him were made by applying cloths soaked in cold water to his face and brow.

Police Are Called

When Rehnstrom did not respond to the treatment it was suggested that the police be called, and a telephone message was sent in to police headquarters that a man had been knocked out in the tavern.

Officers Kinch and Keresman in one of the radio cars picked up the alarm and drove to the tavern. As they entered Amato is alleged to have said "Get that guy out of here," pointing to Rehnstrom, who was lying in the chair. The officers found that the man apparently was dead and Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek, one of the police surgeons, was called and found that Rehnstrom was beyond medical aid.

The district attorney's office was notified and Coroner Michael Galletta of Glasco called, and police headquarters notified of the death.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood immediately took charge of the investigation.

Autopsy Performed

At the request of the district attorney, the autopsy was performed on the body by the two physicians.

Amato was taken to police headquarters under arrest where he was questioned as to the events that led up to the death of Rehnstrom. His version was corroborated by Caputo and Sidney Kantowitz of 24 Chambers street, who was also in the tavern at the time.

Two Coast Guard Cutters to Fly Hudson River During Winter for Cargo Vessels

With the coming of cold weather the two coast guard cutters, the Comanche and Mohawk, were ordered into service on the Hudson river yesterday to keep the river clear for up-river traffic.

As freezing weather threatened to hamper river traffic the boats began the task of keeping a channel open.

Two cargo boats are now at Albany. One, The Nordby, is loading grain and the San Anselmo is discharging grain. Two more ocean going ships are due this week.

'Hound' Devised to Trace Lost Radium

Precious Metal Is Rescued From Dumps, Drains.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—Doctor, if you've dropped a piece of radium and can't find the priceless fragment after ransacking the office from top to bottom, Dr. Robert B. Taft stands ready to assist with his "radium hound."

Dr. Taft estimates he has recovered more than $100,000 worth of radium with the "hound," which is made almost entirely of radio parts and has a nose for gamma rays that functions, rain or shine.

The instrument, according to its inventor, once penetrated the recesses of the Charleston city dump to point out a minute piece of radium that was carried away with refuse from a hospital. It also has performed notably in cases of radium lost in sewers, drains, waste baskets, furnaces and—in one instance—in the stomach of a pig.

The "hound" is a development of the electroscop, formerly used for locating misplaced bits of the radiating element. But where the electroscop was slow to react to presence of the metal, the "hound" begins buzzing as soon as it sniffs the tell-tale emanations.

And weather conditions have no effect on its performance, whereas the electroscop might not recognize a lump of radium a foot away in rainy, or even damp, weather.

Taft began experimenting with radium recovery in 1933 with an electroscop. His first case was a piece lost in a doctor's office. After several hours he found it in the waste basket.

He began dabbling with the electroscop, adding improvements one by one until finally the modern "hound" was evolved.

Taft has records on 107 radium losses. Of these 59 were complete recoveries, 11 were partial recoveries and 36 went down as total losses. He's still working on the 107th.

Judge Relaxes by Making Violins in Leisure Time

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Judge M. J. Walther, of suburban Lakewood's municipal court, makes violins when he is not sitting on the bench.

"You might get blisters pursuing the kind of hobby I have, but it's worth while and I'm turning out better fiddles as I go along," the judge said.

"I chose law as a career because my father advised me to do so—violin-making is my favorite other occupation, though."

He said that his father taught him how to construct violins. He learned the rest of his hobby from books. By 1928, Judge Walther was turning out violins at the rate of five a year.

"It takes me about six weeks to make one violin, but longer for a viola," he said.

"I use maple for the sides and backs of my violins and spruce for the tops. The 'st' shipment of wood I used came from an old barn outside of Lakewood."

The judge has examples of his handiwork scattered throughout the Walther home. On the piano in the living room repose 10 violins and a viola. Two cellos lean against the wall. The table usually is covered with violin patterns, as is the basement workbench.

Judge Walther said that it was not until 1932 that he discovered how to make his own varnish and put the proper tone in his violins.

"I sell few of my violins. I give most of them to my friends and relatives," he said.

Medical Paper Tells of Canada's Helium Source

MONTREAL.—Helium can be produced in several parts of Canada, according to the Quebec Medical Journal.

The Journal states that the belief that the United States has a monopoly on the gas is a fallacy. The United States is the only country producing helium, it explains, but Canada has produced the gas and could do so again.

During the World war, according to the Journal, deposits of the gas were found and recovered in several parts of Ontario and Alberta. The development of new uses for the gas in medical science is drawing attention to the Canadian resources again, it is added.

The Journal said experiments have been made in the use of helium for treating pneumonia and heart conditions and it promises to be of great aid in respiratory disease. A colorless, odorless, tasteless, non-poisonous and noninflammable gas, helium also has other uses such as in preserving of food, in fireproofing and in radio tubes and illuminated signs, it adds.

So far as is known Canada is the only source of helium in the British empire, the Journal said.

Slants at Science

Going Too Fast

Richmond, Va., Dec. 29 (AP).—People in the United States may be going at too fast a pace to make their sanity certain.

Dr. John W. Thompson of Harvard University today told the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that both physical and mental work appear to be wearing down the nerves and reflexes of human beings who work too hard in any activity.

Fatigue of the mind and nerve cells is apparently one of the major causes of mental illness, which keeps about one out of every ten persons in the country under medical and institutional care, he declared.

In a recent experiment at the University of Chicago in which students were kept awake for two days by violent stimulation they appeared to go partially crazy and kicked and bit each other on the slightest provocation.

In another investigation, Dr. Thompson said, it was found that conditions prevailing in aluminum smelters "play a prominent role in hampering the normal development and integration" of a person's life. Slum life results in a hitherto unrecognized cause of insanity and crime because it makes normal rest, sleep and living impossible.

One of the best methods of treatment of persons who become partially insane because of fatigue is not complete rest but more activity along other lines, the Harvard scientist said. "Diversions suitable to the patient's temperament and exercise conforming to his ability" are often more effective than keeping him in bed, he declared.

The use of birth control education in treating and preventing mental illness was suggested in the symposium by Dr. George Gilbert Smith of Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

In many cases, particularly in the lower economic levels, the fear of having additional children affects the minds of both mothers and fathers and makes the family's condition worse by putting one or the other, sometimes both, in a hospital, he declared.

And Hens to Crow

A hormone which causes hens to crow was described to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today at Richmond.

The hens sound off almost as well as roosters and the experiments indicate that the hormone can be used to relieve humans, particularly men, of inferiority complexes.

The hormone is testosterone which already has been reported by physicians as giving aging men renewed interest in and energy for their work. It is the principal male sex hormone but its most interesting effects have been non-sexual and have not all been confined to the aged.

The experiments were reported by W. C. Allen and N. E. Collins of the University of Chicago.

Dreams Are Different

Dreams of men and women are different. There is more beauty and more of the fantastic in women's dreams and more of the practical side in men's dreams, Dr. Charles M. Diersen of the University of Cincinnati reported today at Richmond to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Pavements of Manganese

Discovery of huge pavements of manganese on the floor of the ocean was reported at Richmond today by Charles Snowden Pigot of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Manganese is widely used in the manufacture of steel. Much of America's manganese is imported.

Dr. Pigot told the American Association for the Advancement of Science that manganese has been found in vast slabs covering many square miles of ocean bottom.

Another discovery is reservoirs of radium in the great "deeps." These are not large enough for commercial use but show a much higher concentration than the radium of the earth's surface.

Among South American nuts are the Brazil, or cassidine nuts which grow in a woody covering that holds 18 to 24 nuts each, packed together closely.

Then there are the South American cream or paradise nuts, a more slender and delicate version of the Brazil nut. Souri nuts are several times as large as Brazil, rather oily and rich in flavor, and grow in shells that weigh as much as 25 pounds each.

Rotarians Enjoy Movies of Storm

The destruction caused by the hurricane that swept through the New England States, the Long Island section and the New Jersey coast, and left its mark in Kingston and other sections of Ulster county on September 21, was vividly brought before the members of Rotary at their noon luncheon meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday.

The pictures, with accompanying sound descriptions, were shown through the kindness of Charles E. Burnett, Kingston manager for the New York Telephone Co., and were shown by Robert Zantner, of the publicity department of the company. Mr. Zantner himself took some of the pictures shown, including scenes in the Hudson river section.

The pictures featured particularly the work done by telephone men from 30 states, who to the number of several thousands, with some 600 trucks, answered the emergency call when nearly 500,000 telephones were put out of commission. The wonderful efficiency of both the system and its employees was demonstrated as they tackled the almost herculean task of restoring order to the chaos that was left in the path of the hurricane that swept up the Atlantic coast and then, for some unaccountable reason, turned and swept through congested areas of the country, heading north through Canada and so into the wastes of the far north.

Many views of the indescribable confusion and damage that was left in the wake of the mighty wind, showed large boats left stranded on the inland. Thousands of stretches of railroad tracks underlaid and wrecked, buildings and beach resorts lying in ruins, miles of telephone wire and cables washed out, broken and tangled in such confusion that it would seem an impossible task to restore them to their original order and serviceability. More than 7,000 trained men took up the task, working seven days a week, from dawn till dark, until the unparalleled job of re-establishing the vast network of communications was completed.

A second picture shown by Mr. Zantner, portraying the operation of a large telephone exchange, and following a young woman from the time she applied for a position as a telephone operator through the various steps that led to her final acceptance as a qualified operator, also proved of great interest to the Rotarians.

Guests at the luncheon Wednesday were L. Beatty, Henry Elting, John Ham, E. M. Huben, Al Reins and Frederick W. Surden.

Christmas Cheer at The Benedictine Hospital

The Benedictine Sisters express sincere appreciation to their many friends who so generously contributed in spreading Christmas cheer throughout the hospital at Christmas.

As in former years the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital devoted much time to the decorating of the reception hall and the trimming of trees in the corridors and wards of the hospital.

The merchants were most generous and many friends contributed an abundance of poinsettias and other flowers that made the chapel and hospital a scene of beauty for the holidays.

Christmas carols were also enjoyed by the patients on Christmas morning.

HARRY HOPKINS: Even His Enemies Like Some Points About Man Who Must Win Senate's Okay of Cabinet Job

RELIEF CHIEF Harry L. Hopkins got greatest fame for verbal scraps as he defended relief system, and as biggest employer in the U. S. (hired 4,000,000 in one month). Sat with cabinet long before F. D. R. named him secretary of commerce. He's 48, has been "on relief" in Washington since 1933.

FATHER of Diane, cute daughter of the late Mrs. Hopkins, and three sons by divorced first wife, Hopkins occasionally takes time for play. Likes horse races, boxing, golf, poker, bridge, poetry and baseball, which he used to play to get money for college. He was born in Iowa, a harness maker's son.

INSPECTOR of public works, he frequently has gone trouble-shooting in person to get the lowdown. Thirty years' social service gave him deep humanitarian convictions, which some of his opponents say are "too deep" for sound economics in handling the billions of dollars in the huge relief fund.

SPENDER of billions (eight in five years—American record), lover of red gaudies and hazy red tape, he's called genius of administration. Often eats (sings, rolls) on jump. His been accused of being unsympathetic toward business, though he says he is a firm believer in private enterprise.

ILL with stomach trouble early this year, Hopkins doesn't look well but still has plenty of fire in his eye. He's colorful talker, nervous, energetic. Opponents have often prefaced attacks with statement they think he is honest but that ideas on spending are wrong. Appointment must be confirmed by Senate.

Crosses 30 Times
Clinton (N. Y.)—Wallace B. Johnson, Hamilton College registrar, got himself a record by crossing the Atlantic Ocean 30 times without making the journey on any boat more than once. This man, however, the record was broken by Strikers prevented the Normandy from making its scheduled sailing, so Johnson made his 31st trip aboard the Rex, which carried him once before.

INDUSTRIAL PREPAREDNESS

It is reassuring, in times like these, to learn that one of the most essential branches of our national defense has quietly been taken care of, with the public hardly knowing anything about it. Also with very little expense.

When we entered the last war in 1917, reports Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, there was no military link between government and industry, no organization of industry itself for efficient service in wartime. That was why it took so long for our country to get into effective factory production and military action.

The lesson was learned. There has grown up accordingly a force of several hundred officers in the war department who have learned the ways of industry and can speak its language. These officers have been used as liaison men to canvass the principal industrial plants with a view to war-time production. They have had the full cooperation of industrial leaders.

"They inspected more than 20,000 plants. Owners, managers, foremen and engineers helped them at every step," says Mr. Johnson. "Where information was meager or inadequate, many of the factories assigned their own officials, on their own time and with their own money, to do the research work necessary to assist the army in the surveys of their establishments. One organization, to my knowledge, has just spent more than $25,000 in the last three months in conducting such a survey of its own and preparing its plant for possible use by the government in any emergency.

"As a result of these surveys, we have earmarked 10,000 plants for war production. We have informed their managers and their properties as to the tasks to be imposed upon them in the event of war. All of them have expressed their willingness to shoulder the responsibility."

Here is a fine example of government and business working together in a vital field. It is well for the public to know about it, and also well for foreign countries that may have any hostile designs against us to know about it. In this age of bluster and bluff, known preparedness is a good war preventive.

A BRITISH "SIGN"

Prime Minister Chamberlain, discouraged by the complete failure of Germany to show appreciation of the Munich surrender and cooperate with Britain for the peace of Europe, said in the House of Commons last week:

"I am still waiting for a sign from those who speak for the German people, that they share this desire and that they are prepared to make a contribution to peace which would help them as much as it would help us."

And the House consoled him with a vote of confidence.

But a sign, considerably larger than a man's hand, came from David Lloyd-George, war-time premier and leader of the Liberals in Parliament. It is "a dangerous obsession" that the premier had got into, he said. He added that Mr. Chamberlain was "no match for these astute, crafty and unscrupulous dictators," and that Hitler and Mussolini had treated the British and French premiers "with great contempt."

All of which Americans have seen right along. The dictators seem unlikely to change, because they are driven, by the nature of their rackets, to ever-greater demands and excesses. From present indications, the next important "sign" given to Britain and the rest of the world may be plans for a great drive eastward to grab the rich and populous Ukraine from Russia and Poland.

HELP FOR CHINA

That "Bank of China," to which American credit facilities for wood and war supplies are being extended, is a curious institution. Nobody seems to know where it is just now. The Chinese government has had to jump around so much in the last year or two that it is hard to be definite about such things.

It may be assumed, however, that there really is such a financial institution still functioning. And it has an honorable history—it has never failed to pay.

Anyway, the credits proposed by our government seem safe enough, for they are based on a gold reserve painfully built up in this country by the Chinese government and people. The $135,000,000 said to be standing to their credit probably represents millions of small gifts from a harassed and impoverished people, much of it contributed in the form of jewels, rings, cherished old coins and household treasures. There may be many a melted Buddha or Confucius or Mencius represented in that fund.

Incidentally it should be observed that Great Britain and the Bank of England are involved in this belated cooperation with China. It has dawned on John Bull, as well as Uncle Sam, that it would be a much more unpleasant and insecure world if the Chinese democracy were erased from the map.

In a free country no party ever stays in power very long, because everybody tells it what to do, and it can't do everything, and people get mad and demand a change when their advice isn't followed.

There seems to be a growing notion that crime comes from poor glands. Still, the owners of the glands probably have something to do with it.

As for the coming session of Congress, wouldn't it be better to attend to current business and postpone the 1940 campaign for a few months?

"President to Let Congress Draft New Laws," headlines the New York Times. Now who says this ain't a democracy?

This is an age of wisecracks; and heavens knows, we need 'em.

 TREATMENT OF VARICOSE VEINS

It would be safe to say that at least two of every five adults has varicose veins to some degree—thighs, legs, ankles, lower bowel (hemorrhoids or piles), scrotum (varicocele) and elsewhere. Fortunately most cases require no treatment as no symptoms are present. There are a great number of cases of varicose veins in the legs, sometimes accompanied by varicose ulcers difficult to heal. Just what should or should not be done is often a problem in these patients.

As a guide to patients and physicians in the treatment of varicose veins, Dr. Howard R. Mahorner and Alton Oschner, New Orleans, offer some suggestions in Annals of Surgery. They recommend the use of a tight band or tourniquet across different levels of the thigh—upper thigh, the mid thigh, and the lower thigh. When the patient walks with the tourniquet applied, the varicose veins—swollen, twisted parts of veins—do not stand out as much as when standing still or walking without the tourniquet, but in certain instances there are different degrees of improvement with the tourniquet at different levels. The physician is enabled to select the proper treatment for the individual case.

Treatment—by injection or operation—is not recommended in advanced age, lowered vitality, pregnancy, tumors, or inflammation of veins (phlebitis).

The "active" treatment consists of injecting the veins with a "hardening" substance which causes them to dry up, or removing portions of the veins by operation.

Cases chosen for the injection method are:

1. Early cases with small varicose veins of the calf or lower leg in which the deep veins will return the blood to the heart when the varicose veins are destroyed.

2. Certain cases which refuse operation.

3. Cases where patients dislike idea of operation but are willing to undergo injection treatment at present time.

The combined injection and surgical treatment is used in cases with moderate or severe varicosities where there are no conditions present which would prevent good and safe results.

Where the condition of the varicose veins is not considered severe enough to require injection or operation, rest, keeping legs up on chair or higher as much as possible, and the use of elastic stockings and bandages is recommended.

Health Booklets

Eight helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are available for readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of this newspaper. The booklets are: Eating Your Way to Health; Why Worry About Your Heart?; Neurosis; The Common Cold; Overweight and Underweight; Food Allergy or Being Sensitive to Various Foods and Other Substances; Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis); and How Is Your Blood Pressure?

New York (AP)—Gold imports this year are expected in financial circles to reach a new record high of around $1,850,000,000. This would compare with $1,600,000,000 in 1937 and $1,740,000,000 during the previous peak period of 1934. Back of the huge inflow of yellow metal, of course, lies this country's record-breaking export balance—which foreign countries must pay for—and the unsettled condition of markets abroad. Despite the recession, foreigners found investment here more attractive than at home.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Loden

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
 Allan Collings, the man Noel loves.
 David Norris, Noel's wealthy suitor.

Yesterday: Noel learns that David is the backer of the play, and that Allan is going to marry Elaine.

Chapter 13
New Year's Eve

"MR. NORRIS is resting comfortably."

Those cheerful words of Joseph's brightened the morning for Noel. She breathed a sigh of relief. David's temperature was down. The doctor had been there already, well pleased with the turn.

Next day she was permitted to visit the patient. He was lying there in bed, a remained invalid. But David's illness had left its mark—new lines on his face, colorless lips, tired eyes.

"This is all I need," David explained when he saw Noel. He sent the nurse out of the room.

"It took you so long to come," he remarked petulantly. "You couldn't have worried so much."

"But, David, I was following the doctor's orders."

"Well, I don't think you tried very hard." As David continued he looked over her head out the window.

"I mustn't get angry at him, Noel thought. Invalids are always demanding. Conversation was spasmodic for a few moments. Finally David asked: "What about the play?"

Noel tried to meet his eyes. "That can wait until you're better."

"So—Swanstrom told you?" David's face flushed. Noel laid her hand on his shoulder restraining herself.

"You're not to think anything, dear, until you're completely recovered. You must not concern yourself with business affairs. That can wait."

She was frightened at the excited flush in his cheeks. She knew this excitement was bad for him. But he insisted:

"It can't wait. You tell Swanstrom he can count on me. I'll see that my lawyer arranges it right away."

"All right, David—but please, please, don't do that. The doctor won't let me come back, you know, if he thinks my visit disturbs you."

"How are your friends?" he asked, abruptly.

Noel knew whom he meant. "They're in town for a few days," she told him. As she saw the angry glint in his eyes, she added, "Allan is going to marry Mrs. Schuyler when he comes back from South America."

The words were magic. Noel could see his whole figure relax on the bed. David raised her hand to his lips, kissed the palm.

"It was so foolish—I see now," David's voice was complacent. "I really was jealous of him, darling. You had such a strange look in your eyes whenever you spoke of Collings."

"Whatever made you think such a ridiculous thing?" She could say it usually while deep inside something was hurting her. Something nobody else must ever know.

Because she realized now there was that which went out from her to Allan she would never feel again. So that when David asked humbly:

"Tell me this, darling—just say that there's still a chance for me," Noel looked at his sick white face, remembering his kindness, thinking of the future without any Allan. At least she could make one person happy.

She leaned down and kissed his forehead. It was a passive kiss—she had forgotten Allan's kiss at Claiborne. All kisses of friendship weren't the same, she assured herself, knowing full well the friendliness had been one-sided. For her it was something deeper, more disturbing, more disrupting than friendship.

She should be happy!

"I've never misled you, my dear," she managed after a pause. "But if you want me as I am, the way I feel for you—"

"Oh, my dearest!" He tried to raise himself on the pillow.

Noel remonstrated. "We mustn't talk about it any more now."

She should be happy! She had given her word. But now she was only a desire to get out of the room, out into the cold January air. Without making it appear like an escape she left David shortly, promising to return and see him next day.

Encouraging news awaited her when she stopped in at the Swanstrom office. Douglas held up a thick folio of typewritten pages.

"Dixon's kept his word for once," he exclaimed. "Here's the revised script."

It is good," Noel didn't need to ask the question. She could read the answer in Swanstrom's satisfied attitude.

"As good as can be expected," he reluctantly told her. Noel knew he was pleased, or would have been cursing Dixon emphatically. Then she told him what David had said.

Swanstrom was jubilant. "Now we can go right ahead." He rubbed his palms energetically, already anticipating the excitement of getting it staged—his first vital pleasure in living.

He paced the floor, his plans already in action. "We'll start it the day after New Year's." He came over to Noel, shook her by the shoulders. It was a friendly gesture from Swanstrom.

"We've got a gold mine in 'Susan is Waiting'—he shouted exuberantly. "Did I tell you we'd changed the title again?" he asked Noel abruptly.

"You haven't told me very much lately," Noel admonished him.

But she caught some of the spirit from Douglas and when she left him, she too was deep in the agonizing throes of the first curtain going up opening night.

The mood lasted all through the day, far into the night. Her sleep was interrupted a dozen times as she would wake up saying the lines Dixon had written—poignant farewell, unhappy waiting the final glorious reunion.

The pain in thinking of Allan was muffled, too, when she saw him and his mother.

"Elaine's flown down to her parents in Palm Beach for a few days," Mrs. Marchand reported while she and Noel lunched together. Noel thought: Elaine is probably telling them she's taking Allan at last.

Celebrating

SO THAT she understood Allan's motive when he suggested, "Mother says she's too old for New Year's Eve festivities. How about us two celebrating it together, Noel?"

She told David about it. He gave his consent, after Noel explained Elaine was in Palm Beach and she was a substitute.

"The whole town's gone gay," Allan reported when he called for her. His eyes inspected her admiringly. She'd arranged her hair piled high with the velvety blossoms laid against the sleek soft waves and she wore her long white velvet coat over the tight-fitting gown.

The streets they drove through were crowded with noisy merry-makers and when they reached the restaurant for late dinner, the place was jammed. Beautifully gowned women were escorted by jovial companions. Many of them had already a good start on a café crowd's greeting to New Year. Allan ordered champagne and over the first glass he said:

"Well, here's to what's ahead of us—I hope it's everything you want, Noel."

Everything she wanted! Because of you, I won't get that, Noel thought, looking at Allan but she smiled gaily and responded:

"For you, too, Allan—happiness and success! I don't have to wish you good luck. I have a feeling it will always be with you." She finished her drink quickly and held out her glass to him. When acquaintances stopped by their table and she introduced Allan she was a convincing picture of the gay, carefree young lady. The champagne helped the illusion. And she was a good actress!

They went on to the Cairo. "You must have magic powers of persuasion to get this reservation," Noel told him as they were led to an advantageous table not far from the bandstand.

Once when Allan's thoughts seemed far away Noel felt sure he must be thinking of Palm Beach, and Elaine. But he said, "I wonder if mother's gone to bed yet; we could call her." They went out to the telephones and spoke to Mrs. Marchand.

"I'm so happy you're enjoying yourself, dear," the older woman told Noel over the wire.

"Happy New Year's" in advance and came back to dance to soft music.

Allan's arms were around her when the lights went out and the bedlam of sound let loose. The floor was packed with wildly excited celebrants.

"Happy New Year!" rang around the room in the darkness. Allan's arms tightened. "Happy New Year to you, darling," he whispered into her ears.

Then he kissed her and without knowing it, Noel's arm went round his neck tightly. The kiss, started lightly, became impassioned. Noel felt tension grow in Allan's body. For herself, it was heavenly ecstasy—something she would not know again.

The lights went up—the noise grew in volume. They were held close together by the mobs surging around them. Allan was looking down at her tenderly.

"Sweet, joyous Noel," his voice was filled with emotion. He was lost in the mood of the moment. But Noel remembered Elaine and David—

"Let's get away from this crush," she managed coolly and Allan seemed literally to shake himself out of the daze.

Willy Nilly Wonders

"I THOUGHT I heard a low trumpeting sound," said Willy Nilly. "Tell me, Christopher Columbus Crow, have you really and truly seen anything unusual?"

"I've seen two unusual objects," cawed Christopher. "I'm not sure whether they are birds or beasts or..."

"You're not going to tell us they may be fishes?" bleated Sweet Face.

"No, no, they don't belong to the fish world, and yet," added Christopher, "they had just been coming out of the pond when I saw them."

"They were in my pond?" quacked Mrs. Quacko excitedly. "That wouldn't make them fishes," quacked Mr. Quacko. "We live in the pond and we don't belong to the fish family."

"Tut, tut, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "Christopher," sighed Willy Nilly, "are you playing a prank? Are you feeling wide-awake while we are feeling sleepy? Are you keeping us awake by making us curious? Have you seen anything unusual? What is it? Tell me."

"I've seen two unusual creatures," returned Christopher. "I am not playing any prank. After all it is close to the new year and I have made a resolution to be a good crow."

"You may have made a resolution," cackled Top Notch. "But whether you keep it or not—even for a few minutes—is another thing."

"I don't like your roosterish insinuation," said Christopher. "Won't all of you be surprised when you see what I've seen!"

And strange, strange squeaks could be heard once again.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Weird as an Arabian Nights tale is a story from below the Rio Grande of the "lost tribe" of Apache Indians, victims of America's campaign to make the great west safe for democracy.

Several seemingly authoritative sources have attested that the tribe exists in a state of starving savagery 200 miles south of Douglas, Ariz. Recently a Norwegian ethnologist, Helge Ingstad, presented such incontrovertible testimony about the fugitive band that the Indian bureau is seriously considering steps which could be taken to restore them in New Mexico with other members of the tribe.

Their history goes back to 1865 when Geronimo led them across the Mexican border to escape U. S. soldiers. As they fled to one story with somewhat less authenticity relates, they killed Charles McCormick, New Mexico territorial judge, and his wife, and kidnapped their six-year-old son.

For a score of years America's incomparable native cavalry wandered along the unpolluted border area south of the Rio Grande. Then Geronimo surrendered and most of the tribe was settled on the Mescalero reservation. In New Mexico, one small band refused to surrender, hiding instead in the Sierra Madre Mountains, from where present tales of them come, and where Ingstad reported seeing a group of five. Four were women, one a man, the latter bedraggled and obviously browbeaten and abject. The leader of the five was a woman.

They were in my pond?" quacked Mrs. Quacko excitedly. "That wouldn't make them fishes," quacked Mr. Quacko. "We live in the pond and we don't belong to the fish family."

"Tut, tut, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "Christopher," sighed Willy Nilly, "are you playing a prank? Are you feeling wide-awake while we are feeling sleepy? Are you keeping us awake by making us curious? Have you seen anything unusual? What is it? Tell me."

Schirick Denies Default Motion

Justice Harry E. Schirick has denied a motion of defendant in an action brought by William Miller against Rita Radin Miller, to open a default. The judgment previously rendered by Justice Schirick in favor of the plaintiff stands.

The action was brought in special term by Mr. Miller to gain possession of a bank account in the New Paltz Savings Bank. Benjamin Lonshtein of Lonsberry and Lonshtein appeared for the plaintiff, William Miller. Charles F. Kaiser appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Miller alleged that he had on deposit in the New Paltz bank the sum of $2,067.60 prior to September 26, 1937. On March 8, 1936 he married the defendant and he alleges that after he was married she persuaded him to make the account a joint deposit so that in case something happened to plaintiff the wife would have the money. In court he said he had later transferred the money to a joint account although the money was his own. Later his wife left and with her went the bank book. At that time there was a balance of $2,027.35. Unable to locate his wife, Miller brought an action for possession of the money and Justice Schirick granted that application. Then Mrs. Miller, who allegedly had been in Pennsylvania working, brought an action to vacate the default judgment and defend the action.

This application to re-open the default is denied by Justice Schirick who hands down the following memorandum:

"This is a motion to vacate a judgment obtained by default."

"Section 108 of the Civil Practice Act permits the court, in its discretion, to vacate a default judgment where the default is due to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The defendant's default in the case at bar was entirely willful, and she is entitled to no relief under this section."

"The motion is denied."

The Star
Denver — With the score tied 25-all, Ross Pymell, Brighton, Colo. guard came up with the ball after a wild closing-seconds scramble and looped a spectacular one-handed shot into the basket.

Their problem is solved.

They've arranged to have radio and earphones installed at New Orleans. They'll watch the Sugar Bowl contest and listen simultaneously to the Orange Bowl game.

Christadelphians Will Hear Dr. Samuel Stern

This evening at 7.45 the Christadelphian Society of the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street will hold its bi-monthly social. Two years ago Mr. Stern was the guest speaker at a meeting of this society and as expected, his comments were both interesting and educational.

Besides speaking Dr. Stern will have along with him several combinations of slides which depict life in our state prisons.

Following Dr. Stern's talk and pictures the young people will enjoy refreshments and dancing in the lower assembly hall. President Mrs. Dorothy Hoff requests all members to be on hand for these features and also two very important announcements.

Holiday Hostessing

For many years the stars of our movie kingdom in California have celebrated the first day of the New Year with hearty hospitality. And as these movie stars change their homes from West to East, where lies their work, so do they take their home ties and habits with them. Thus it is that New Year's Day is fast becoming a day of "Open House" throughout America.

Those of us who live and work in a lesser sphere may well imitate the stars of the movie kingdom by holding an open house at our home on New Year's Day. The movie stars make their Christmas or New Year's greeting cards an informal invitation to the "Open House" simply by having the card imprinted with the phrase, "Open House from 2 to 6 p.m. on New Year's Day. Please Come!"

Such an informal invitation does not require elaborate preparations or flashy refreshments. Simple cocktails, assorted sandwiches, or cake, tea and coffee, serve the purpose admirably—bespeaking in their simplicity the hospitality extended. College young folks, home for the holidays, will find this a grand way to enter-

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 29 (AP)—Governor A. Harry Moore, conceding that he had started a snowball rolling down hill when he heeded a widow's plea to help her find a husband, retired today as the involuntary head of a non-profit marriage mart. Thumbing through a dozen new pleas from lonely widows, Moore said he would have to forego the role of cupid which last week resulted in 54 offers of marriage to a young widow calling herself the "Western Girl."

215,000 New Homes
New York (AP)—Some 215,000 families were provided with new homes during 1938, according to F. W. Dodge Corp. The coming year is expected by these building statisticians to show an increase in residential building of 13 per cent over this figure—which was the highest since 1929. The dollar value of these homes, however, was the highest since 1930.

Romans Had Names for Dogs

The Romans had names for dogs, too, and their names were not so very different from our names. Their groups were canes villatiles (house dogs), canes pastores (shepherds), canes venatici (sporting dogs), pugnaces or bellicosus (fighting or war dogs), nases sagaces (dogs which hunt by scent) and pedipus, celeres (swift dogs which run by sight). Our groups are sporting dogs, which includes all the bird dogs; hounds, which includes hounds which run by scent and those which run by sight; working dogs, which includes that shepherd and some of the ancient war dogs; terriers, a new division since Roman days; toys, which includes the miniature dogs which were doubtless classified as house dogs in ancient days, and the non-sporting group, which includes everything else, some of which probably were house dogs, some, probably not yet bred and some, while extant in some form or other, unknown to the Romans.

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Cason

HOLLYWOOD—From Carole Lombard to George King: Congratulations.

Miss Lombard presented the same to Mr. King because he had accomplished (1) what she had been unable to do and (2) what no movie script had been able to do and (3) what no woman had been able to do.

Mr. King, a business-like young man, had made Clark Gable dance. Mr. Gable, for these many years, had gone through life practically without stepping on a dance floor. Even during the simple motions of a one-step or a waltz (does anyone remember?) Mr. Gable always has suffered from acute shyness. Mr. King, with a few simple instructions and a large amount of cooperation, had turned Mr. Gable not only into a dancer but into a hooper.

MR. KING, it is true, had a powerful weapon. He had the script of "Idiot's Delight." If Gable were to have any part of that script, he had to hoof. Gable wanted it. He hooped.

I watched the result during the filming of his hoofing scene and I admit right now that Clark Gable is going to be a waltzer. It's the scene in the hotel lobby wherein Gable's vaudeville troupe entertains to relieve the new wife's tension among the guests. His audience includes Norma Shearer as the blonde (and phony) Russian countess, Edward Arnold as the munitions manufacturer, Pat Paterson as the young American bride, and Charles Connors as the scientist. On the sidelines the audience includes everybody on the lot who has managed to sneak in. (When Gable talked it was nothing to this!)

SO CLARENCE BROWN gave the signal, and Gable, preceded by his chorus of six blonde dancers, hoofed on. He wore a wide-brimmed straw hat of uncertain vintage, a tux, and a broad grin—and to the recorded tune of "Puttin' on the Ritz" Mr. Gable gave. Self-consciously true, but he produced—and that scene ought to seal the picture.

Success with Gable, however, has brought its penalty for King. "I've just had word," he said, "that I'm to work on 'Let Freedom Ring.' All I have to do is teach Victor McLaglen to do an Irish Reel."

SEPTEMBER, 1938: Czechoslovakia Pays Bill For European Peace Party

IN ENGLAND... Chamberlain shows off German friendship agreement upon return from four power conference.

By VIOLA TORLEY
"AT Feature Service Writer
"Out of this service, dancer, we plucked this flower, safely." Thus Neville Chamberlain, summarized September's sorry story.

Repeatedly the British prime minister new to Germany. Resolutely the Nazis asked for more and more. Repeatedly the old world mobilized.

London passed. Citizens tried on gas masks. France's Marine Line was manned. German ships were called home.

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA... Hitler triumphantly enters the Sudeten area on the heels of his army.

and Italy's 11 Duce went into a jam session. Then Chamberlain new home with a bit of naught, used like a movie hero beside his plant, and boasted he had preserved "peace with honor."

Czechoslovakia paid for it. At midnight, September 30, Germans goose-stepped into the little democracy, and Poland and Hungary stepped for their shares.

Der Fuehrer disclaimed further European territorial aims. But jokers said: "Have you heard the latest? Hitler just gave the world 24 hours to get out!"

A Nazi push in Ohio, that same September, cost three score lives and failed. America ordered government's agents to register. England's queen landed on the world's biggest liner, the Queen Elizabeth. The Count of Gwagonga died in a Miami auto crash.

The demand for Christmas trees takes 10 million each year. Balsam, spruce, fir, and pine are the kinds most commonly used.

A nation-wide effort to remove a surplus and to encourage the use of butter more widely is underway in the United States to help the dairy market.

Sheep that are fed all of the good quality legume hay they will clean up will need less grain than sheep that receive poorer-quality roughages.

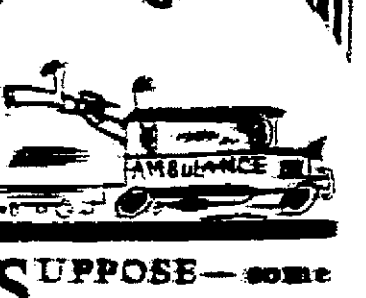

Six years' results of central and western New York official egg-laying tests, and information on how the birds are fed and managed, are given in Cornell Bulletin, B-394. For a free copy write to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

Plats by Another Name
Evanston, Ill. (AP)—One might expect culture in this university town but Policeman Ed Fallow's report about four flat tires found on John Kelly's vandalized car seemed like culture-plus. This is what Fallow wrote: "Mr. Kelly parked family jalopy at 1931 Sacramento. Mr. Kelly came out a few minutes later and found the jalopy's rear wheel flat. The car or its horizontal plane had lost its pristine roundness on the posterior side."

Farmers' wives buy more canned foods and other manufactured food products than do town housewives, it is reported.

Turkey May Have Named

Itself by Call Sounds

Perhaps the most widespread error concerning the bird is the vague idea shared by thousands of people that the turkey came originally from Turkey. This is an utterly false notion. Just why the bird should have been called "turkey" in the English language no one seems to know. The realm of His Sultanate Majesty had no more to do with the introduction of the bird to polite society than did Greenland or Kamchatka, asserts a writer in the Rural New-Yorker. The turkey was introduced into Europe by Columbus, taking it to Spain. It is possible that an ill-advised public concluded that, like many other unusual things, it came from Turkey or the Far East. Again, the bird may have named itself, since the call of the hen to her chicks sounds very much like tur-r-r-k, tur-r-r-k. At any rate, there is no actual connection between the bird and the country of the same name.

Another common error is the notion that the tame turkey is the descendant of the wild turkey. It is quite natural to assume that some person or persons in the early days caught some wild turkeys and tamed them and that from these our domestic turkeys were derived. Like many other plausible and widespread assumptions, however, this idea is incorrect. Our domestic turkey and our wild turkey, though members of the same species, are different, and distinct races. Though in the early days the forests were full of wild turkeys, our domestic fowl did not come to us out of our own forests. It came from southern Mexico and it is derived from the southern Mexican wild turkey and not from the North American wild turkey.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

That clapping sound you hear is the head of the house shaking his wallet to see if there is anything left in it.

The stewed one was vainly trying to find the keyhole; for an hour he had been poking and could not find it. A passerby seeing his predicament, said:

"Fascinating—Say, old chap, you can't open the door with that, it's a cigar."

Pickled One (looking at the object in his hand, then stammered): "Hully gee, mushtio smokhed m'latchkey!"

PERSEVERANCE... It is not enough merely to begin; staying power is necessary. It is not enrollment, but years of study that provides an education. The same with life itself. Success means staying power. The reason for many failures is lack of perseverance.

The general merchant, who did a bit of tailoring in his spare time, was called on by a friend, who said:

"Friend—I've been putting on weight and this dress suit is rather too tight for me. Could you manage to let it out a bit?"

Merchant—"I've never done such a thing, but I'll see what I can do."

A week later the owner of the suit telephoned to see how this friend was getting on with it.

Merchant—"Better than I expected. I've let it out to four men already."

SOME FUNNY WANTS... Lots of funny ads get into the Want Ad page columns of newspapers. They are so funny sometimes that people have begun to collect them. Here are a few from the assortment of a collector.

"PERSONAL Family lawyer will read the will next Sunday morning at the residence of Timothy Halaban, who died January 15, to accommodate his relatives."

"WANTED: Strong, willing young man to take care of horses who can speak Swedish."

"FOR SALE: Nice double mattress by an old lady full of feathers."

"WANTED FOR THE HOLIDAYS: Extra male and female help; no others need apply."

"FOR QUICK SALE: Jersey cow giving eight quarts of milk, a single bed and a music box."

"PERSONAL: Man of means who desires to meet attractive woman who is deaf but not dumb. Object, matrimonial peace."

"FOR SALE: Bakery business. Good location, good trade. Large oven, owner has been in it for 20 years."

"FOR RENT: Reasonable. Modern six-room flat, with bath on the car line."

"Wanted: Bright boy, who can open oysters with a reference."

"FOR SALE: Grand piano by a young lady with mahogany legs and case."

"Wanted: Large, well-furnished room by a young woman about 15 feet square."

"FOR SALE: Nice parlor suite by an old couple stuffed with hair."

A stiff upper lip may be an asset, but a stiff spine is an obstacle.

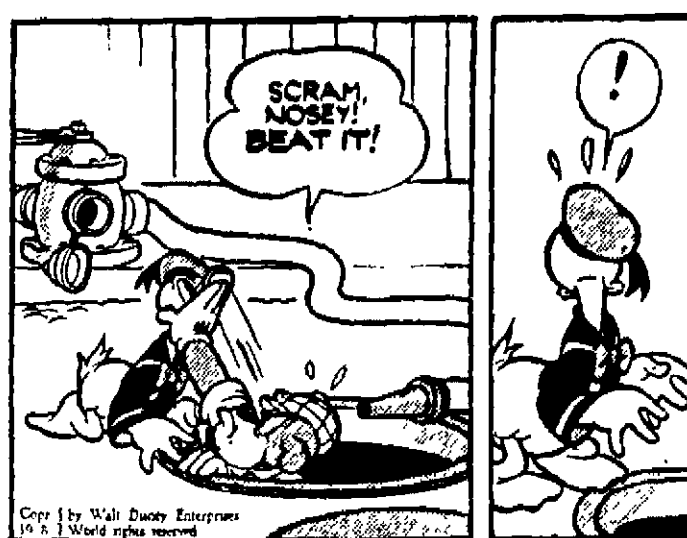

123—What is the difference between a sewing machine and a kiss?

124—One says seams nice and the other seems so nice.

READ IT OR NOT—The silkworm spins about 4,000 yards of thread in a lifetime.

The present difficulty with the sewage disposal at the Marlborough Central School was discussed at the meeting of the board of education held last week. Considerable trouble has been experienced in the past weeks and one occasion the local fire truck had to be put into service in an effort to eliminate the trouble by pressure.

It seems that one of the disposal beds is working, while the other isn't and faulty construction is believed the cause of the difficulty.

The board members voted to request a description of the construction of the disposal plant from the factory. It was also voted to send Coach John Schellenger to the conference for athletic coaches of schools in the state in Syracuse December 26 and 27. At this conference coaches were given an opportunity to become acquainted with the new athletic set-up advised by the state.

The big bell which has hung in the old Marlborough School house on Grand street and called children to school for many years, rang again on Christmas Day, after a silence of more than a year.

This time, however, its familiar sounds were not calling the children to school, it was calling persons to the services in the Methodist Church. A platform has been constructed in the tower, and the bell was put in place by Adolph Kniss and Will Masten. Frank Pembroke tolled the bell.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 28—A gay crowd gathered in the Village Green on Christmas Eve to sing Christmas carols around the lighted tree and to welcome Santa Claus who arrived with a lively team just at the close of the carol singing. Generous portions of hot chocolate were served. Each child was given an orange and a candy cane supplied by Santa. The program was sponsored by the Woodstock Historical Society, the Parent-Teacher Association and the Boy Scouts, with the co-operation of numerous individuals. The occasion was much enjoyed by all, who welcomed the return of the community Christmas which was not held last year.

Other Christmas activities during the week-end were the Sunday School party in the Retormed Church Friday evening, a party by Miss Ethel Moncreux's dancing class on Friday, a tour of carol singing throughout the town on Christmas eve by members of the Christian Endeavor.

Mr. and Mrs. William MacReady drove to Plainfield Friday to bring Mr. MacReady's father to Woodstock for the Christmas week-end.

A marionette show presented by children of Mrs. Norton's and Mrs. Tom's rooms of the Woodstock school was given in Mrs. Norton's room on Friday afternoon at the close of school. Marionettes were made and performed entirely by the children, who had started them last year as part of their art work with Mrs. Quick. The room was crowded with parents and guests. Particular features of the performance was a gypsy dance, clown acts and a play, "Adventures of Betty." Children who took part in performing the acts were Virginia Hastie, Ruth Hasbrouck, Lorraine Wilbur, Bobby Brinkman, Jerry Cohn, Ronald Mower, Sandra Roome, Peter Shultz, Danny Fitzsimmons and Jean Shultz. The entertainment was so successful that another performance may be given soon.

A two-wheeled wheelbarrow has been developed by a Cat-forma manufacturer to prevent tipping in hauling of heavy materials, such as cement.

Internal Sanitary Protection... No Odor, No Belts, Pads or Pins

Local women who recently tried B-ettes at our expense, are now delighted to buy this modern sanitary protection, as sales by retailers prove. These women have found new comfort, new convenience, new peace of mind at a trying time—complete protection without pins, pads or belts—no bulge, no chafing—most important, no odor problem, because internal absorption prevents odor. Try B-ettes and you'll never want to go back to "old ways". 25c for 12 (a month's supply)—10c for trial package of 4 at drug or dept. stores. Say "Bee-etts".

How to Ease CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress. THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warm cloth. LONG AFTER sleep comes, VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion. Two Youths Raid
U. S. Mint 'To See
If We Could Do It'

Boys, 15, Throw New Armor-Plated Edifice Into Bedlam; 'Leave It to a Kid...' Says Superintendent

San Francisco, Dec. 29 (AP)—The new armor-plated and heavily guarded United States Mint was raided last night by two 15-year-old boys who got in by scaling a wall and raising an unlocked window.

Police Inspector Max Reznik identified the boys as Paul Francis and William Gallagher, residents of an orphanage at San Rafael. They were held for juvenile authorities.

"We wanted to see if we could do it," officers quoted the boys. Bedlam broke out in the huge fortress of granite and steel—supposedly impregnable—when a guard saw two prowlers in the copper store room and turned in an alarm.

Lights went on, bells sounded and angry-voiced men with machine guns appeared.

Inspector Reznik said the boys had tossed out of a window a big sheet of copper from the room where pennies are made.

George Maher, captain of the mint guard, asked the two orphans how they managed to enter the building, protected by great walls, by impenetrable steel, tear gas equipment, heavy bars, numerous burglar alarms and a large force of guards.

Paul and William said it was simple.

"We went around to the Octavia street side of the building," police quoted them.

"We found the windows nearest the ground barred. So we climbed up a pipe to the second story and crept around a ledge until we found a window partly open.

"We just pushed the window in further and dropped down inside. That was all there was to it."

P. J. Haggerty, superintendent of the mint, was surprised and disturbed.

"Leave it to a kid to do what a mob of gangsters couldn't do," he said.

Oil Well in Use as Early as in the Time of Noah

The first commercial oil well was drilled in America, but oil that seeped to the surface of the earth was used for simple purposes as far back as human knowledge goes, far back as the Chicago Tribune relates a writer in the Chicago Tribune, Noah, according to the Bible, used pitch to stop up leaks in the ark.

"And God said unto Noah... make thee an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch."

The American Petroleum Institute says the pitch was a form of petroleum from the shores of the Dead Sea.

The Greeks used oil to set fire to enemy ships. There are records of its use among the early Chinese. The Indians were using crude oil for medicine when the Pilgrims came to America. The oil was skimmed from the surface of springs. The while man treated rheumatism with it. No such thing as a refining process had been heard of and uses of oil in its crude form were limited.

Old as is the use of oil, its origin is much more ancient. It comes from decomposed sea plants and animals that were covered with mud of seas long ago. Over countless years part of the mud turned to stone, some to limestone, and some to shale. These are "source rocks" of oil. Every continent has them.

The American Petroleum Institute, in a history of oil, says that George Washington had an oil spring and that he listed it in his will as a valuable possession. It was on a tract of western Pennsylvania land which he bought in 1753. However, the task of getting oil did not become an industry until more than a hundred years later.

Arch Bridge Long Used; Most Graceful, Artistic

Of all bridges devised by man, the arch bridge is the most graceful and the most artistic. Perhaps also it is as ancient as any, with the possible exception of the single-span type of bridge, for men were building arches back in neolithic times, writes John A. Menough in the Chicago Tribune.

The principle of the arch has been known from very early days. When men of the later-Stone age discovered that a wide opening could be spanned by leaning two stones together at its apex the first arch was made, and the ruins of such triangular arches still are widely found throughout the basin of the Mediterranean. From these first arches the whole business of building arch bridges—even down to modern times—developed. Many of the largest and strongest bridges are built upon the principle of the arch, although iron, steel, and reinforced concrete have supplanted stone and timbers of the earlier types.

It was the employment of stone, however, that was responsible for the origin of the arch as applied to bridge building.

Stone arches are constructed of rocks or stones that are naturally wedge shaped or have been cut into wedges.

Name Victoria Means 'Victorious'

The name Victoria, of Latin origin, obviously can have but one meaning—"the victorious," states Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Victoria Colonna (d. 1547) most beautiful woman in Italy in her day, was also a poet whose work is considered of high quality. Alexandrina Victoria (1819-1901) had her second name given to her as an afterthought but was destined to be its pre-eminent bearer in all history—Queen Victoria, who reigned over the British empire for 64 years, longer than any other monarch in English history, and impressed upon her time her own high principles. Victoria was the name of her mother and of the first of her nine children, who became the Empress Frederick of Germany. It was also the name of the queen's favorite grandchild ("Aunt Toria") to the Duke of Windsor, who died at 67 in 1936, having been an invalid all her life.

Gaur Is Wild Ox

A gaur is a wild ox, native to northeastern India, and is probably the largest living species of wild cattle. Full-grown males are sometimes 6 feet high at the shoulders and have horns 2 feet long with a basal diameter of 6 inches. The gaur is alert, wary and exceedingly pugnacious when brought to bay. A full-grown male is said to be a match even for a tiger. In India the animals are kept in partially domestic herds for their flesh. They are often erroneously called bison.

Gibbon Roosts in Tree

The gibbon is the most two-legged of the anthropoids. Proportionately, his upright gait, leg length and posture are more nearly like ours than are those of the other apes, although his top weight is usually about 14 pounds and there is nothing human about the way he travels when speed is the essence; he can swing across a 40-foot space between trees with a precision and timing that only wings could improve. His usual night roost is a crotch in a tree, but unlike other apes he clasps his knees after he gets his back settled against the trunk. One of the commonest instinctive gestures of man is to bare his chest one hand and draw the back of it laterally, lightly, across his lips. This is exactly the manner in which the gibbon drinks; he wets the fur on the back of his hand and uses it as a drinking cup.

No Radical Changes for Grid Rules Says Coach Lou Little

Expect Duke Will Feature Passes

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—The unknown quantity in the Rose Bowl football equation is Duke's offensive plans for Southern California January 2.

But a good guess, based on Coach Wallace Wade's record, is "passes."

Copious copy has been written about the defensive ability of the unscathed Blue Devils. Much has been mentioned about the stingy defensive attitude of Coach Howard Jones' U.S.C. team.

And the word has been bandied around freely by Troy's supporters how with speed, power and deception they will do this and that with running plays and passes.

Strangely, none has had much to say about Duke scoring. Naturally the Duke contingent hasn't brought up the subject, except to bemoan the fact George McAfee, fastest man on the squad, has been handicapped by a foot injury and still isn't in good shape.

In fact, the only positive outward display of scoring ability has been the field goal kicking of Tony Ruffa, a third string guard who boots the ball with accuracy as far back as the 40-yard line.

Coaches Await Osmanski X-Rays

San Francisco, Dec. 29 (AP)—Coaches of the East Shrine football squad waited today for X-rays to tell whether hard-hitting Bill Osmanski, Holy Cross fullback, would be in trim for Monday's charity game against picked westerners here.

After virtually shunning scrimmaging for a week, co-coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr of Colgate yesterday pitted their lads against a sandlot outfit, the Oakland Cardinals.

Result was a shoulder injury for Osmanski, of undetermined seriousness. The coaches replaced him with Howie Weiss of Minnesota, and sent Osmanski to a hospital.

Down at Palo Alto the west squad ran into a tough scrimmage with an odd lot of ex-Stanford players plus Bill Higgins, Oregon State back.

Sugar Bowl Bill Is in Full Stride

New Orleans, La., Dec. 29 (AP)—The Sugar Bowl sports carnival swung into full stride today with the start of the annual tennis tournament, increased argument over the merits of those football opponents—Texas Christian and Carnegie Tech—and post mortems on Purdue's 57-51 basketball victory over Arkansas.

Aspirations of the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian dwindled no little as news was awaited on the condition of Ki Aldrich, All-American center, who has an eye ulcer that may force him to remain on the bench.

Last night's basketball game between Arkansas, Southwestern Conference champion, and Purdue, Big Ten leader, was a thriller throughout. Arkansas got the score to 51-49 with two minutes to play but the boilermakers pulled away with three quick goals.

With gates locked and guards keeping a weather eye out for possible spies, the Sooners and Volunteers are flipping the ball around in practice as if they have little hope of penetrating iron-bound land defenses.

Looks Like Aerial Game for the Bowl

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—There's a growing suspicion here the Orange Bowl will be filled with flying football leather when Oklahoma and Tennessee get together for their argument next Monday.

With gates locked and guards keeping a weather eye out for possible spies, the Sooners and Volunteers are flipping the ball around in practice as if they have little hope of penetrating iron-bound land defenses.

Large, Valuable Forests in the Northern Section

There is a great land mass, 10,000 feet high or over, in the region of the South pole, whereas around the North pole there is water or ice surface at sea level. In general it is colder at the South Polar region than at the North Polar region, because of this greater elevation, both the average temperatures and the extreme temperatures being lower.

The area of Antarctica or the Antarctic regions is estimated at over 5,000,000 square miles, or equal to Australia and Europe without Russia.

The Britannica contrasts the North and South Polar regions thus: Within the area north of 60 degrees latitude live more than a million human inhabitants and countless land animals. Some of the largest and most valuable timber forests are north of this line, and not a few industries connected with lumber, mining and fishing flourish. In the similar area in the southern hemisphere, there is not a single permanent human inhabitant nor a single human animal larger than a insect. There are no trees and few plants of any kind. The sole industry is whaling, carried on a few months of each year. Probably less than 100 square miles of this vast area are free from a permanent covering of ice.

Chicago, Dec. 29 (AP)—Satisfied that football, rules and all, had enough "kick" for another season, the nation's football coaches passed up major changes and turned today to movies and lectures on the game.

Augmenting the second day of the American Football Coaches Association's 16th meeting was a joint session with the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

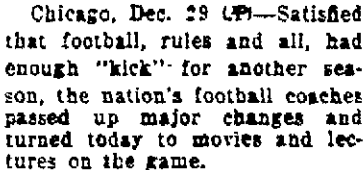

While giving the grid code general endorsement yesterday, the association's rule committee made six recommendations to the NCAA rules body, which will meet next Monday at Colorado Springs, Colo. Another proposal was made to its own group.

Lou Little, Columbia coach and rules committee chairman, said "none of the rules represent radical changes."

Recommendations to the NCAA were:

- 1—When a forward pass strikes an ineligible player on or behind the line of scrimmage, the penalty be loss of down and 15 yards from the point of the previous down. (Coaches felt loss of the ball at point of previous down, too severe and believed change would permit more shovel passes.)
- 2—On a forward pass play all ineligible men must remain on the line of scrimmage until pass is touched or incomplete. Penalty would be 15 yards from spot of preceding down.
- 3—Greater enforcement of penalties against intentional grounding of forward passes. "The fact a defense player is near the point where a pass is grounded should not be taken as prima facie evidence the pass was not intentionally grounded."
- 4—A punted ball touched or grounded by the kicking team no longer be considered a foul. Under present rules fouls on the same play by opposing teams offset each other and do not permit a kicking team, for instance, to decline a penalty to take advantage of a good punt should it ground the ball and the opposition also foul.
- 5—Penalty giving receiving team ball at spot of foul committed by kicking team while ball is in the air is too severe. A study was requested.
- 6—Careful study of equipment to reduce injuries reported due sometimes to certain types of cleats or types of protective pads. The proposal made to its own group was the request to experiment with a change which would permit the team scored upon the same option as that preceding the game—the choice of kicking, receiving or choosing a goal to defend.

Shultis and Murphy Among DUSO Cagers With Most Points

By running wild against Ellenville in the last DUSO battle Jim Harrison, left forward of the Port Jervis High School basketball team, has swept into the lead as far as scorers are concerned. The rangy Tri-State has pumped in 26 markers as to Jess Shultis' 20 for first place.

After being held down to eight points by the Maroon and White guards, Andy Murphy and Milt Dublin, Harrison came up against lowly Ellenville and scored 18 to give him undisputed lead at this early date. Except for his low game against Newburgh Shultis would undoubtedly have the leadership. In this game the scrappy Maroon forward was limited to one foul. In his first game this season Jess rattled Port's hoop for exactly 19 points.

"Crutch" Meadow, the Liberty Freshman star and his teammate Hasbrouck along with Andy Murphy of Kingston, complete the first five with 18, 14 and 14 respectively.

Del Baker's Chips On Righthanders

Seattle, Dec. 29 (AP)—Del Baker is staking all his diamond chips on three righthanders—a $50,000 rookie, a grownup schoolboy on the comeback trail and a frail but dependable money hurler—to pitch his Detroit Tigers into the running in the American League this year.

Freddie Hutchinson, Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges are the blue chips. Baker, Detroit manager, admitted while here this week to sign Hutchinson to a Detroit contract.

Greenberg and Fishback in Lead

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—With form prevailing as 11 of the original 12 seeded players paraded in to today's fourth round of the national junior indoor tennis championships, Joe Fishback and Seymour Greenberg remained foremost among the favorites.

Fishback, captain of the St. John's University netmen and defending champion, advanced through yesterday's barrage after blasting Judah Lober, 6-4, 6-0. In the other bracket, Greenberg of Northwestern University, seeded No. 2, disposed of Andy Reynolds, 6-0, 6-2.

Dick Bender of Elizabeth, N. J., continued his march with 6-0, 6-0 scores.

Bender was slated for sterner opposition today, however, in a match with Bill Gillespie, a Duke University student from Atlanta, who was seeded No. 5.

Favorites flocked into the advanced rounds of the junior doubles and boys' singles just as impressively as in the junior singles. In the boys' singles there was not a single break in the lineup of four seeded stars and all favored tandems likewise won in the doubles.

Animals and Mammals

All mammals are animals; comparatively few animals possess the characteristics necessary for classification as mammals. Mammals comprise the highest class of animals. Their outstanding characteristic is that they nourish their young with milk. Mammals are covered more or less with hair, possess mammary glands, a muscular diaphragm which separates the heart and lungs from the abdominal cavity, and red blood corpuscles without nuclei.

Banting Seeking Cancer Remedy

Canadian Scientist Making Progress; Finds Some Animals Immune.

TORONTO.—Sir Frederick Banting, world famous as the conqueror of diabetes, is now engaged in a fight against cancer which may lead eventually to the overcoming of that disease, it is disclosed here.

For 10 years Banting has attempted to develop resistance to cancer among various animals. Medical authorities refuse to say that a cure for the disease is in sight, but they report that Sir Frederick has made "marked progress."

The Toronto scientist, who received a knighthood four years ago, in recognition of his services, has discovered that tumors, developing on some animals, disappear "by some unaided, natural process."

Clue to Natural Cure.
"It is his belief, and that of others whose lives have been given to the study of cancer, that the key to a cure lies in determining what promotes this natural cure," a spokesman for the medical profession states.

While the cause of cancer remains unknown, authorities believe it is the same in human beings and animals and that the discoveries made in the case of the latter will also benefit humans.

In experiments with chickens Banting is said to have discovered that one bird in every 164 treated developed resistance to cancer. In these cases, after a tumor vanished, further cancer tissue was transplanted to the bird's body. A second, smaller tumor, then developed, but later disappeared. Further transplantations of cancer tissue did not produce any further tumors and these specimens were then classified as resistant.

Find Mice Resistant.

Experiments on mice, proved that 1 in 14 proved resistant to a certain type of tumor and 1 in 114 to another type.

"While these results may appear small for 10 years of research, they are sufficient to encourage workers in their efforts," a medical spokesman states, adding however, that many more years of research will probably be needed before anything in the nature of a cure can be claimed.

Corrigan's Double Gets

Free Meal in Pittsburgh
PORTSMOUTH, OHIO.—Being a "dead ringer" for Doug Corrigan, the wrong-way flier, may become rather irksome after a while, but it can have its advantages, too.

Groceryman George Roberts became so tired of people pointing him out as the famous aviator that he took a little vacation trip to Pittsburgh. On arrival he entered a restaurant for dinner.

Throughout the meal he was conscious of muttered consultations between bus boys and waiters and once he caught the head waiter nodding in his direction.

Finally, during the dessert and coffee, the head waiter approached. "You're Corrigan, aren't you?" he asked.

Despite his denials the head waiter, with a confidential chuckle, laughed him off.

"Okay, Mr. Corrigan, I won't say a word," he winked. "But the meal is on the house."

Roberts let the matter rest at that.

Nail Pulled From Head Of Baby, Now He Plays

KANSAS CITY, KAN.—Jackie Holt, 13 months old, is back at his play in the kitchen, seemingly suffering no ill effects from a nail which penetrated his head to the depth of an inch.

Jackie's mother, Mrs. William H. Holt, returned to the kitchen one morning and there sat Jackie with a shingle fastened against the top of his head held tightly by a nail driven into his skull. Jackie had tipped backward from his high chair and landed upon his head against the shingle and nail. He was taken to a hospital. The attending physician believed it safe to pull the nail straight out. A careful examination revealed no injury to the brain and the physician said the only danger was from infection.

Lemon Tree Prolific

DUSTIN, OKLA.—A Hughes county farmer, J. A. Hilliard, grows Japanese lemons that look like oranges but are little larger than limes. His one Japanese lemon tree has grown from seed brought from Georgia 20 years ago. The tree bears three to five times a year.

It's Still Boloney,

But It's Effective

STUEBENVILLE, OHIO.—A gunman walked into Agosto Billia's store and said, "Stuck 'em up."

Billia grabbed a pound of bologna and flung it with careful aim. The meat caught the bandit between the eyes. Bewildered, he fled.

Billia turned to his cash register. The chunk of bologna saved him $100.

Native Foods Only

Istanbul (AP)—Turkish people have commenced a "savings week" during which only Turkish products will be consumed. Foremost is the campaign against "foreign tea and coffee," of which they are very fond.

A movement is under way in California to make three years' residence in the state a requisite for citizenship.

Evolution of Rocks Is Mainly Chemical Action

The evolution of rocks of various "species," as set forth in the theory of crystal fractionation, is mainly a chemical process, according to an authority at the Geophysical laboratory, Carnegie institution of Washington. It is assumed that all igneous rocks had as their common "ancestor" an enormous mass of molten, perhaps plastic, material deep within the earth. Chemically, this primordial rock stuff, called magma, is believed to have been predominantly basic, rather than acidic, containing large quantities of lime, iron, magnesia, and other bases.

Columns of this magma occasionally rose very slowly into higher levels of the earth's crust, where pressure is less intense and temperatures are lower. Some came to rest within the crust and some issued forth as lava flows at the surface. As the magma cooled, some of its molten elements reached temperatures which compelled them to unite in definite molecular combinations and to separate from the liquid as solid mineral crystals, which sank or rose, depending on their weight, relative to that of the magma. Igneous rocks are aggregates of such crystals.

This crystallization followed a definite sequence analogous to the "evolution of animal species." First the basic elements crystallized out into minerals, forming such basic rocks as basalt, commonly known as trap rock, while the last elements to crystallize were alkalis and silica, forming such acidic rocks as granite. Between these two extremes came intermediate stages, in which rocks containing varying amounts of bases and alkalis were formed.

Carrying the analogy with evolution further, those who support the theory say that after the "higher" types of rocks—those richest in alkalis and silica—have been formed they will not hybridize with "lower" types—the dark-colored rocks rich in iron, lime and magnesia. Study of rocks indicates that such "reversion to type" has actually taken place.

Wild Boy of Hanover, an Animal-Like Human Being

In the year 1725 Peter the Wild Boy, as he came to be known, was found in a wood 25 miles from Hanover, relates a writer in London Answers magazine. He was thought to be about 13 years old, walked on his hands and feet, lived mainly in trees, which he could climb like a monkey, fed upon grass and moss, and was totally devoid of speech.

In the following year he was brought to England and exhibited to King George I, who had him placed in the keeping of a farmer near London, and allowed him a pension. Peter never learned to articulate more than a few words, and expressed his sensations by various animal-like noises, neighing like a horse when pleased.

His senses, were much more acute than those of a civilized man, and he was credited with being able to understand the language of birds and beasts. He aroused much interest among medical and learned men of the time. Peter died in 1785.

Frogs Make Long Hops

Any ordinary frog can hop 13 inches, but it takes a trained jumper to do better than 10 feet. For some reason American frogs hop farther than those of Europe, says the Washington Post. Usual training methods are simply to make croakers jump frequently, develop their hind legs. But they are temperamental, often refuse to perform in a contest. An old one, the sport was especially popular in early Western mining camps. Prospectors often wagered thousands of dollars on a single leap.

N.Y. Telephone Co. Reports Changes

Frank P. Lawrence, who has been vice-president and general manager of the upstate area of the New York Telephone Co. for the last four years, has been appointed vice-president and general manager of the Manhattan area of the same concern, effective January 1. He succeeds Marshall B. Downing, who is resigning.

Mr. Lawrence, a graduate of Lehigh University, has been in the telephone business since 1912, occupying various positions in the territory of the New York Telephone Co. and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. He was general plant manager, Manhattan, before his appointment as vice-president and general manager, upstate in 1934.

William A. Kietzman, general commercial manager of the Manhattan area, will become vice-president and general manager of the upstate area. Mr. Kietzman's telephone service dates back to 1912, when he accepted a position with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. He has worked with that company and with the Bell Telephone Co.

Meaning of Name Vincent

The name Vincent, of Latin origin, means "conquering," which makes it an auspicious name. Vincent is the Italian form, according to Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. St. Vincent Ferrer (d. 1419) was called "the angel of judgment" and preached throughout Europe. St. Vincent de Paul (b. 1576) devoted his life to the care of the poor. Vincenzo Catena (d. 1551) was a Venetian painter whose contemporaries ranked him with Titian. Vincenzo Campi (d. 1591) also an Italian, excelled in small figures, fruits, etc. Vincente Espinel (d. 1624) was a Spanish poet whose stanzas came to be called espinelas. Vincent Bourne (a. 1747) was a noted English poet of his day.
